Madison has been at it since 190; and has a record as long as your arm. For the first five years he indulged in 4-round affairs almost exclusively, only one 10-round fight appearing during that entire period, Last year he began to go the longer route and at it he has been fairly successful. He has taken the count only once, being knocked out by Jack Clifford, at Taft, Cal., in eighteen rounds, during the latter part of 1911. Madison has had thirty-eight fights in all.

been very busy at the game during fais to throw basket for Priory from According to Walter Camp, George Crowther of Brown should be awarded quarterback position on the first All-American team. In the open field running the "Kid," as Crowther is termed by his teammates, is easily a rival of Sprackling, last year's star in the position, whose place he is filling. His work was the feature of the Harvard games. With little of no support against Harvard, Crowther circled the ends time and again for spectacular gains and ran back punts through a field of Crimson tacklers. Occasionally, Crowther sought the center of the line, winning his way tarough for several yards. He also played a grand game against Vale. On the defense Crowther is a sure tackler. He has not missed a possible tackle this year and has several difficult chances to his credit. Crowther weighs only 140 pounds and is often handled very roughly by his heavy tacklers, but he is game to the last and one of the nardest fighters seen on the gridiron his sea-

But one more match remains to be played in the "Y" Bowling League series, and on the result hangs the championship. From the standpoint of excitement and a close thish, the series could not have turned out better, for there is a chance of a tie for first place tonight.

The Cherries and the Expanders come together on the "Y" drives, and if the latter can take all three games they will be tied with the fruity leaders, with just two thirds of their games won. Undoubtedly the Expanders will find the Cherries hard picking, but there is a chance, and a fair one at that, that they will be able to turn the trick with three straight, in which case a special series will probably be arranged be tween the two teams.

The Expanders have one advantage, and that is that they will have five men rolling in every game, with the chance of individual brilliancy, whereas the Cherries, with only four men in the line up, will have to use the average of the fifth man. Williams, according to the rules. Williams has been way, below form of late, and his average is only 162, so that figure will appear in the Cherries column for all three games. The other Cherries are Gear, Mills, Rasman and

The Expanders will have six men on the alleys tonight, and low man of each game will make way for a substitute so that everyone will have a chance to roll. Edgecomb, C. H.
